

How to pitch
a story idea
to Art Jewelry
magazine in 4 easy steps

ART Jewelry[®] magazine

1 Decide what jewelry-making techniques or tips you want to share with readers. (You could do a project, like how to make a ring, in order to teach multiple techniques, or you could teach a general technique, like how to etch metal.)

2 Make or choose a piece of your jewelry that's a good example of those techniques, or make samples that illustrate your idea. (So, you'd choose a ring if your project were how to make a ring, or send in an etched panel as a sample that shows your etching technique.)

3 Send us a couple paragraphs (e-mail or snail mail is fine) outlining your idea (let us know what key points your article will cover or what tips and techniques readers will learn from seeing how you make your jewelry), and include a picture of your jewelry or sample.

How to send stuff:

- E-mail to editor@artjewelrymag.com.
- Upload at www.contribute.kalmbach.com. Don't use symbols, like an asterisk or ampersand, in the filename.
- Mail to Editor, Art Jewelry at the appropriate address (see below). If you're sending the actual piece, please let us know how much you'd like the piece insured for upon return.

4 Sit back and relax. If your story idea is accepted, an editor who is knowledgeable in your field will get in touch with you within a month to walk you through the submission process. (For a sneak peek, check out our submission guidelines.)
